

First we looked at adding some extra information to the sentence - Spiderman climbs the wall. (Mrs Dark)

Spiderman grapple hooks up the wall of the tall building. (Ellenor)

Spiderman, in his red suit, climbed the tall, rough wall. (Reggie)

Spiderman climbs the very high brick wall. (Isaac)

Then we tried to add prepositions to the start of the sentence.

Near to a deep hole, Spiderman climbs the rickety building. (Mrs Dark)

Near to the parked cars, Spiderman in his bright red suit, climbed the tall rough wall. (Reggie)

Near a bridge, he climbed the high wall. (Isaac)

Near a big hotel, red and black Spiderman grappled up the really high building with 100s of windows. (Ellenor)

Our Traction Man Story

In the bathroom, Traction Man noticed a problem. He saw a huge puddle and realised he would have to find out why it happened and fix it before the humans woke up.

Standing next to the door, put on his diving suit and fetched his tools including the superglue from the garage. He slid under the white door and rushed back to the bathroom. Gathering his equipment and his trusty sidekick, Scrubbing Brush, Traction Man ran to the toilet and jumped into the bowl. Swimming quickly, he reached the broken piece of pipe and found the hole. Using the superglue, he fixed the problem but Scrubbing Brush was stuck too! After lots of pulling, Traction Man freed his sidekick and they travelled to the end of the pipe

Finally, Traction Man waited for the humans to have a bath and then he dropped from a huge height into the water along with Scrubbing Brush. Luckily, he was able to use his grapple hook to get out of the bath and travel back to the safety of the kitchen.